Three Stray Horses.

Came to the subscriber's plantation on the 4th inst. three stray Horses; two of them are light sorrels, one of them has the end of his ear cut off; each of the sorrels are between 14 and 15 hands high, and I think they would make a tolerable good match: the other is a bay horse with a blaze face, foxed, and nearly the same height with the others.

I wish the owners to pay expences and take them away as quick as possible.

Fairfax, July 12.

Late Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, May 9.

Private letters from Vienna says that a treaty of alliance between the two Emperors has been agreed to, and that its signature only awaits the answer of the King of Prussia to an invitation to accede to it.—The Austrian as well as the Russian armies have been augmented, and are now complete: and new fortresses are constructing on the Austrian frontiers of Italy. All these transactions, tho' only defensive measures, evince that the great Continental powers, while they talk of peace, doubt its long continuance, and are therefore prudently prepared for war.

The French have not yet entered the city of Naples; but the queen of Naples apprehensive of a visit, intends going to Vienna, and an English ship of the line is in the road of Naples ready to take on board all British subjects in that capital with their property.

The American ship General Green, arrived at Plymouth, sailed from Amsterdam the beginning of the present month, at which time 15000 Dutch troops were embaring at Alkmaar, and 1500 French were daily expected there for the same purpose. There were five sail of the line, a frigate, and two sloops of war lying in the Helder, intended to convoy the above troops for the purpose of invading England.

May 10.

We are we believe, well founded, in stating that Mr. Frere has left Madrid, and is returning to this country as rapidly as circumstances will permit.

It was reported at Yarmouth yesterday, that the Dutch fleet are lying at single anchor, having on board 30,000 troops.

The Paris Journals give a very flaming account of the capture of Goree by the French, and which is considered as exhibiting a favorable omen of the success of the greater expedition which is to be undertaken against this country. What sort of an omen will they consider the recapture of Goree.

This morning at 10 o'clock and not before, it is positively stated, that Mr. Adington delivered up the seals to his majesty at Buckingham house. Mr. Pitt is said to bring with him Lord Melville, First Lord of the Admiralty; the lords Hawkesbury, Mulgrave, and Harrowby, Secretaries of States. The following noblemen it is said, remain in office—the Duke of Portland, Lord Chatham, Lord Elden, and Lord Westmoreland goes out. From this statement of affairs it is inferred, that Mr. Pitt will set out with a formidable and bitter opposition against him, many conceiving themselves as having only been made ladders upon which others have mounted. Many names of the new opposition are mentioned, and it is even stated, that they will be able to muster 170 in the house of commons at the first outset.

His Majesty's appearance in public yesterday as noticed by all the papers of this day, is dwelt upon as a most fortunate omen of the full establishment of his health, which if well founded, will be very soon followed by the renewal of the levees at St. James's.

May 17.

The capt. of the American ship Friendship, which arrived at Falmouth in 83 days from the Cape of Good Hope, reports that the Dutch troops there were daily deserting, and expressed a wish to be under the British government. Admiral Linois's squadron were taking in troops at the Mauritius.

PLYMOUTH, May 7.

Came in an American ship of Boston, from Amsterdam, in only eight days; the master reports he was under an embargo in the Zuyder Zee for some time, when an order came from the French Commandant for her and all neutrals to sail the 29th April, or they would be laid under a further embargo, and their rudders unshipped. Fifteen thousand French troops had marched into Amsterdam in the course of the week preceding his departure, for the purpose it was said of invading England. The Dutch troops, where they can do it, heartily curse their French Allies, and the expedition against this country.

LIVERPOOL, May 21.

The Swedish government has ordered a number of gun-boats to be fitted out; they are to return to Stralsund as soon as possible. It should seem from this measure as if Sweden, were apprehensive of some attack from France.

PARIS, April 24.

The Criminal Tribunal has condemned the timber merchant le Page to the gallies for six years. He has been convicted of a fraudulent Bankruptcy. Of the 1800 bankrupts announced since the present war broke out, it is supposed that at least 1750 are fraudulent, it is therefore time that some example is made, which may convince other nations, that French merchants are not permitted to be rogues with impunity.

[La Clef du Cabinet.]

MENTZ, April 24.

Yesterday a courier arrived here from Paris, with dispatches for the prefect, since which a report has been generally circulated, that the Senate will soon propose, that the Government shall be rendered hereditary in the family of Bonaparte, and that then the registers of departments will be opened as was done two years ago. The young Napoleon, the nephew of the First Consul, who will be appointed his next successor, was born the tenth of October 1802.

Moreau is now permitted to have books brought to him in the Temple, and is employed in writing the history of his campaigns.

According to accounts received here, Admiral Nelson is stationed with his fleet off the Sardinian island Magdalena.

HAGUE, April 22.

To-morrow the Minister of War general Bertheir, is expected at Utrecht from Zealand, where he has been from Boulogne. He will review all the troops destined for the expedition against England at Utrecht. He will proceed to Amsterdam and North Holland, and thence return by the Hague to France. It is generally believed that the expedition against England will now soon take place.

St. PETERSBURG, April 5.

The Lavonian division is said to have received orders to hold itself in readiness to march. The corps which are drawn together in Poland, is not at Grodno, but nearer the frontiers.

VIENNA, April 28.

Our government has ordered three new fortresses to be built in the ci-devant Venetian states, and two in Tyrol. The plan after being approved by Archduke Charles is ordered to be carried into execution. But this as well as the completion of all our regiments is only a defensive measure. It has notwithstanding, caused much suspicion in France.

HAMBURG, May 1.

Letters from Vienna of the 21st ult. mention, that the note which the minister of the Elector of Baden has presented to the Imperial Court respecting the arrests of the French Emigrants on the Electer's territory, particularly the seizure of the Duke of Enghien, has given occasion to a conference of State, the result of which is not very favorable to the French interest.

The Austrian army now consists of 411988 effective men.

HANOVER, April 24.

In Brunswick the regulations concerning the residence of French emigrants who have no particular permission, are renewed. The new war tax will soon be published. General Dessolles has required an exact account of all the expences and charges from the entry of the French army to the present moment, divided into proper heads. Conscripts are continually arriving from all parts of the French republic. It is said the Hanoverian soldiers, and the servants of the Palace and Court, are to have their pay stopt.

NEW-YORK, July 12.

FOREIGN NEWS.—The eastern mail of this day furnishes London dates to the 18th inclusive, one day later than those which were given in the morning papers. The leading articles are those which relate to the changes in the administration of Great Britain, and the elevation of Bonaparte to the Throne of the Bourbons. What will be the consequence of these events to Europe and to the world, time only can disclose. We have neither leisure nor room to offer the remarks which occur on these eventful topics.

The following are the articles received by this morning's mail.

LONDON, May 11—14.

The political views of Mr. Pitt have at length been gratified, and he is now placed in those situations to which the greatest ambition of any subject, however superior to all others in ability, rank and eloquence can aspire. This event took place on Thursday morning, about 11 o'clock when Mr. Addington having resigned the seals of office into the king's hands at Buckingham house, they were delivered by his majesty to Mr. Pitt. We shall not trouble our readers with a recapitulation of all the rumors and conjectures, which preceded this important appointment, but shall content ourselves with stating those circumstances on the correctness of which our readers may rely.

When Mr. Addington found it impossible to resist, with any hopes of success the most extraordinary combination of political talents and parliamentary influence which were formed against him, he acquainted his majesty with his determination to retire. The intelligence was received with the deepest regret by his sovereign—It was decided that Mr. Pitt should be sent for, and that gentleman accompanied by the lord chancellor, was on Monday morning admitted to a conference with his majesty. Mr. Pitt took the opportunity of representing to the king, that the circumstances and situation of public affairs imperiously required a strong, comprehensive and united administration; and he is reported to have declared, that for this important purpose he was himself ready and desirous to obliterate all recollection of former differences; and that he was persuaded of the existence of a similar disposition in the part of all those other persons of rank, influence and talent, who shared with him the confidence of the public. His representations on this subject, proved unfortunately ineffectual. The permission to communicate with Mr. Fox on the subject was peremptorily and finally refused.

Immediately after Mr. Pitt had left the King, it is said, he waited on Lord Grenville, who in the most decided manner, expressed his determination not to accept of any official station in a Cabinet from which Mr. Fox was proscribed. In the evening a meeting took place at Lord Grenville's house, at which the Marquis of Buckingham, Lords Fitzwilliam, Carlisle, Spencer, Mr. T. Grenville, Mr. Windham, &c. &c. were present. Mr. Fox was also there, and in the same generous and disinterested manner requested that no consideration of circumstances personal to himself should induce others to withhold their talents from the public service at a moment of such difficulty and danger. It was the unanimous feeling of all present, that they could not render any service to the country, on the principle on which it was intended to form it, and therefore resolved to decline any share whatever in the new Administration. Their sentiments were communicated by letter to Mr. Pitt, who requested another interview of the King, for the purpose of making another exertion in favour of Mr. Fox's introduction into the Cabinet. The impression upon the Royal mind was, however too deep to be erased, and Mr. Pitt withdrew from the conference on Wednesday, disappointed in that object although having himself accepted the offices of Chancellor of the Exchequer and First Lord of the Treasury. On Thursday morning, as we have already stated, he was, according to Court etiquette, invested with the insignia and powers of these high situations.

Since Mr. Addington's Administration could not last it was the fervent wish of all descriptions of men, that a new ministry should be formed on a grand and truly patriotic scale, comprising the most distinguished characters in the country. Nothing like an arrangement of that nature can now be expected by the public; and the nation, instead of having a Ministry calculated to reconcile all political differences, to infuse confidence, and to hold out to Europe an unparalleled instance of union, of ability and exertion in the various branches of the executive, are now to have an Administration much worse than that which was forced to retire and make way for Mr. Addington and his friends. It is to be composed of Mr. Pitt and Lord Melville, of their underlings, and of several of the late Cabinet, whom Mr. Pitt so very recently and so very cordially coalesced with Lord Grenville and Mr. Windham in reprobating. In these strange materials we can discover little to console us at a crisis like the present. It is, however, but justice to Mr. Pitt to state an opinion held in the best informed circles, that he did every thing in his power to form an Administration which would have included Mr. Fox and all his principal friends, as well as Lord Grenville and all his; and that so far from pledging himself not to go into office without Mr. Fox, he had no communication however with him on that subject. Yet surely Mr. Pitt could not have been so ignorant that his majesty would have decidedly objected to the introduction of Mr. Fox? Mr. Pitt, probably, knew, and possible was not sorry to know beforehand, that his application was not likely to be successful. He could not to his sovereign a man, as one of his confidential advisers, whom he had urged that sovereign to strike out of the list of Privy Counsellors, as an abettor of seditious doctrines! The application, however, was made and rejected. Mr. Pitt bowed, and undertook to form a new Administration on a different basis.—Courier.

May 16.

Intelligence is reported to have been received by a foreign Ambassador, that Bonaparte has been proclaimed Emperor of France in all the streets and public squares of Paris. All idea of consulting the people is laid aside; the Senatus Consultus of the Conservative Senate, and the decree of the Tribunate, are considered sufficient authority to change the French republic into a monarchy; and the elective Chief Magistrate of a commonwealth into the hereditary Sovereign of an Empire. It is now reported at Paris, that the coronation is to take place next August, upon Bonaparte's birth day, and to be performed at Aix la Chapelle, where Charlemagne was crowned fourteen centuries ago.

A general amnesty is to be proclaimed for all criminals without exception; the list of emigrants to be closed forever, and all the proscribed persons, with the exception of the Bourbon family, may return to France, and enjoy the rights of subjects. A promotion upon a large scale is to be announced; every officer in the army will be advanced a step.

Alexandria Daily Advertiser.

TUESDAY, JULY 17.

Married on Sunday the 8th inst. Doctor JOHN WATSON, of this place, to Miss ANN HOWE, of Frederick County, Virginia.

GENERAL HAMILTON.

"New York, July 12.

"GENERAL HAMILTON still lives, but not the most distant hope remains of his recovery. This is indeed a sad day! all business is suspended in the city, and a solemn gloom hangs on every countenance. The circumstances of this unfortunate business, as far as I have been able to learn them are as follow:

"A short time previously to the late election, a letter was published in Albany, written by one ———, in which it was stated that Gen. H. in conversation had declared that Mr. Burr was a dangerous man, and ought not to be trusted. This letter was republished in New-York. About a fortnight ago Col. B. wrote to Gen. H. wishing to know whether he had ever declared any thing like that attributed to him. The General answered that he had no recollection of the conversation alluded to, nor were any particular words attributed to him in the letter, and that he could not therefore undertake to say whether he had or had not held such conversation; but that if Col. B. would specify any particular conversation, or state any particular words that he, Gen. H. would at once avow or disavow them. Col. B. replied, that it was not in his power to specify the particulars of the conversation alluded to, but insisted that Gen. H. should declare whether he ever had in any conversation whatever, made use of any words derogatory to his character. To this sort of demand Gen. H. declared he did not think himself bound to answer, but again expressed his willingness at once frankly to avow or disavow any particular conversation which might be specified. Col. B. was not satisfied, and declared, that unless Gen. H gave him a direct answer, he must fight him. The General declared that it was improper in Col. B. to make such a demand of him, and that he could give no other answer to it than he had already given, and must therefore accept of the challenge. But as the Court was then sitting, and his services had been engaged in several important causes, he did not feel himself at liberty to fight, until after the court should rise; that he would then, after devoting a few days to the arrangement of his private affairs, inform Col. B. of the time of meeting. This took place a fortnight ago—the general went through the business of the court as usual, and after it had risen, arranged all his private affairs, and on Monday last made his Will. On Tuesday he attended at his office as usual, gave one or two elaborate opinions and was apparently in good spirits—yesterday morning very early he went out to meet Col. B. attended by ———, as his second, to whom, on their way, he declared that he should not fire at Col. B. as he had not the most distant wish to kill him * man. * The General was carried on board the boat, and landed at Greenwich, where his carriage was waiting for him, but, at his own request he was taken to Mr. Bayard's where he now lies. Upon his arrival at Greenwich, he expressed a desire that the Bishop might be sent for which was done, but * * * * * * *.

"Mr. M. of the Dutch church was then sent for and instantly came—the general coversed with him a considerable time, told him he had a firm belief in the christain religion and had a fervent hope of forgiveness through the mediation of our redeemer—that if he could receive the holy sacrament he thought should die in peace * * * * * * * *

"After some time spent in conversation upon this subject, Mr. M. expressed a hope that the general would now render one more service to his country in addition to those which he had rendered her before, which was to bear testimony against the practice of dueling. General H. said no man abhored it more than he did, and should he die, it would be found that he had not been inattentive to the subject, but had devoted some time to it, and had left a solemn protest against this barbarous custom. (While preparing for this event, which it seems he had a presentiment would prove fatal to him, this great man employed some portion of his time in endeavoring to dissuade his countrymen from this cruel, barbarous and wicked practice.) He further declared to Mr. M. that for several months past he had been convinced that nothing would satisfy * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * and that it was not possible for him to avoid the duel, which he had sincerely endeavored to do. The bishop came to visit him, he expressed his gratitude to him in the warmest terms, declared that the doctrines of our religion enabled him to meet death with firmness, and that if he could have the sacrament administered to him, he should feel perfectly resigned to his fate, placing a firm reliance on the mediation and attonement of his Saviour. The bishop administered the sacrament to him, and from that moment he said he felt happy. Let the infidel read this, and reflect upon the last end of a religious man. Among all the great and good actions of this man's life I cannot but consider this as one of the best and most glorious. Americans, it contains an important lesson to you, coming from your most invaluable Citizen, who felt and prefered the truths of your religion to all the dreams of modern philosophy.

"He has been gradually growing worse since last evening, and no hopes are entertained of his surviving but a few hours.—He lies almost lifeless, with scarcely strength enough to speak, but apparently free from pain. His wife * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

N. B. Prizes subjected to a deduction of fifteen per cent.

This Lottery has been authorised by the legislature of Virginia, for the landable purpose of erecting a seminary of learning in or near the metropolis of this state. With this view it is contemplated to raise 20,000 dollars, and 2,500 dollars in addition, for defraying the expences attendant on drawing the lottery. Citizens of the first respectability have been selected as trustees, and they have pledged themselves to use their utmost exertions to carry it into effect The scheme has the advantage of giving to each each adventurer a chance for some very large prizes, whilst the proportion of prizes to blanks, is so great as to invite the friends of the intended institution to partake in the lottery, with very little risk of their becoming losers. The treasurer of this state is to be appointed to receive the money for the tickets as they are sold, and to pay the amount of the prizes to fortunate adventurers. It is believed that the above considerations will induce a rapid sale of the tickets, and the drawing will commence as soon as a sufficient number shall be sold to authorize it—which it is believed will be on the second Monday in December next.

ANDREW.

A reward of Thirty Dollars is offered to any person for apprehending and securing the said fellow in any jail out of the state, so that I get him again—Twenty Dollars if secured in like manner within the district of Columbia, or at the distance of 40 miles from home, and Ten Dollars, with reasonable charges if brought home, or secured in the jail of Fairfax or Loudoun. Andrew absconded on the night of the 7th instant; he is a bright Mulatto, about 27 years of age, rather low of stature, squat and thick made, broad shoulders, and short dark hair; has one or more scars on his back from a scald when young; wore when he went away, a ticklenburg shirt, a pair of nankeen overalls, striped silk jacket, a hat and pair of old shoes, and of late wore suspenders; he is fond of liquor and much addicted to gaming forward and assuming, very artful, and will attempt to pass for a free white man. He is a good cook and washer, understands business about a house as a waiter, and will probably offer himself as such; he is also a good mower, and is capable of other plantation work. He has a free mother in Georgetown, and I suspect he may for a time endeavour to secrete himself there or about the neighbourhood. A Mulatto man by the name of Ned belonging to Mr. Thos. Blincoe, of Loudoun county, was missing the next day, and it is supposed they are gone off together. ☞ All masters of vessels and others are forewarned from harbouring or carrying off the above slave.

NED.

A reward of Thirty Dollars is offered to any person, for apprehending and securing the said fellow in any jail out of the state, so that I get him again—twenty dollars if secured in like manner within the District of Columbia, or at the distance of 40 miles from home, and ten dollars, with reasonable charges, if brought home, or secured in the jail of Fairfax or Loudoun. Ned absconded on the 8th inst. He is a dark Mulatto, about 24 or 25 years of age, 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, well made, has a down look, wore when he went away, a country made tow linen shirt, osnaburg trowsers, coarse hat and old shoes. It is supposed that he and Dr. Belt's Andrew, who ran away the evening before, are together. ☞ All masters of vessels and others are forewarned at their peril from harbouring or carrying off said slave.

TRAVELS IN GREECE.

PROPOSALS,

FOR PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTION,

THE TRAVELS OF

Anacharsis the Younger,

IN GREECE:

During the middle of the fourth Century, before the Christian Æra,

With copious Notes and References.

BY

THE ABBE BARTHELEMY,

Keeper of the Medals in the Cabinet of the King of France, and Member of the Royal Academy of Inscriptions and Belles Lettres.

Translated from the French.

First American, from the fourth London edition.

IN FOUR VOLUMES.

THE work now offered to the American reader exhibits a complete view of the antiquities, manners, customs, religious ceremonies, laws, arts, and literature of ancient Greece, at the period of its greatest splendour. A knowledge of these has hitherto been only attainable by a laborious perusal of writers who have been little solicitous to join entertainment with instruction. The Travels of Anacharsis, on the contrary, are so written, that the reader may frequently be induced to imagine he is perusing a work of mere amusement, invention, and fancy; till his eye glances to the bottom of the page, when he perceives there is scarcely a sentence, and not a single fact or circumstance, but is supported by the authority of some ancient author. The amazing number of these quotations may, perhaps at first sight, seem to have been unnecessary, and to have more the appearance of a parade of erudition, than to be of any real utility: but it is to be remembered that, at the same time that they must be highly acceptable to the man of real learning, by enabling him to refer immediately to the original author, they are extremely useful, nay, we may say, absolutely necessary, even to such readers as can never be supposed to have any intention to consult the authorities quoted; as they clearly shew that such an idea, or such a circumstance, is not merely a decoration, or the offspring of the fancy of the author, but immediately taken from some ancient writer, and therefore perfectly accordant to the general scope and plan of the work.

TERMS.

I. The first Edition in America of Anacharsis's Travels, will be comprised in four Vols. octavo.

II. It shall be printed on handsome wove paper and a new type casting for the purpose. Each Volume will contain about 400 pages.

III. The price to Subscribers, per Vol. bound and lettered, will be 2 dollars; in boards, 1 dollar and 75 cents, to be paid on the delivery of each Volume.

The European Edition sels at 12 dollars per sett.

IV. There shall be a handsome Map of Greece given with the first Volume, to be executed by one of the best Engravers.

V. Those who obtain ten Subscribers and become responsible for the payment of the same, shall receive one copy gratis. The work is now at Press, and shall be finished with all possible dispatch.

☞ Subscriptions to the above work received at Robert & John Gray's book Store, Alexandria.

Ten Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, living at Cub Run Ford, within three miles of Centerville a Negro man named CHASE, formerly the property of Robert Losson, (sometime since owner of the Occoquan Iron Works): he had on, when he left home, oznaburgs shirt and trowsers, country wove stripped cotton waistcoat, a new coat of mixed cloth, and indifferent hat and shoes. He is about 60 years of age, and somewhat grey, has been hurt in one of his knee pans, which causes him to walk lame, and that leg is smaller than the other; he much resembles a Guinea negro and is about 5 feet 8 inches high, Whoever apprehends and secures said fellow, so that I get him again, shall receive the above reward, and reasonable charges if brought home.

☞ He was seen in several places on Monday the 2d of July, travelling on the main road between his home and Alexandria.
